THE REAL PILLAR OF SOCIETY

IT'S a good rule that works both ways. When the farmer supports the home merchant and the home merchant supports the farmer, you have the real pillar of society. The farmer would have a poor farm if he did not have a good home market. And the merchant can't build up the home market alone. He must have the support of the farmer. Likewise, the merchant has poor business when the service he gives is not the best possible. The trade must be even. The services must be mutual. So, the picture you are looking at now should be true from both ends. If it doesn't quite suit you this way, turn the paper around. Now you have seen the real pillar of society. The farmer upholding the merchant and the merchant upholding the farmer.

BLEASE VOTED FOR NEGRO.

Cast Deciding Ballot for Murray Against Moise, White, for Congress.

Columbia, Oct. 4.—Despite the protests of a number of well known negroes, some alumni of Allen University, Cole L. Blease, former governor of South Carolina, was the principal speaker at the opening of that institution here today. He was introduced and highly lauded by the Rev. W. D. Chappelle, D. D., bishop of the A. M. E. Church, who declared that Mr. Blease was foremost among all the governors of the State. In asking by petition that the invitation to Mr. Blease be withdrawn, the protestants declared: "It will greatly embarrass our wives and daughters to have ex-Governor Blease speak to them since he has spoken so harshly in the courts and on the stump against the virtues of the negro women, and the respect and decency of the negroes in general." This petition was ignored, and the bishop today was somewhat scathing in his rebuke of those alumni and former students of Allen who had presumed to dictate the policies of a great church.

"Who are they, anyhow?" the high churchman asked. In answer to his own query, he said: "They are not known beyond their own back yards."

In the course of his remarks, Mr. Blease boasted that it was he who cast the deciding vote when George Murray, a negro of Sumter county, was made congressman instead of Moise, a white man also of Sumter, a number of years ago. "If I had had as honest a canvassing board three weeks ago as passed on the election of Murray, I'd be the next governor of South Carolina. I've learned that the white people have not only learned to steal from the negroes, but that they have learned to steal from themselves," he declared.

The speaker explained that he had often been misunderstood by the negroes. He charged that the negroes were chiseled out of a portion of the taxes which they pay, when it comes to making apportionment between white and negro schools. He urged the young negroes to aim high, to be truthful and honest, reminding that "You are coming to higher things. They can't hold you back."

The Rev. R. W. Mance, president of the university, also joined in with prolonged words of praise and held up Mr. Blease and the bishop as worthy examples to be emulated by the students of the school. Each, he said, was known throughout the United States.
